Miss Klug

I welcomed all the new councillors and we had a brief chat about what would be expected of them as school councillors, their roles and responsibilities. I gave them all their school councillor badges and lanyards.

I asked the councillors to pass on the news to their class that after half term there will be a football club on Wednesday lunchtime in the sports hall and Mr Hunter will be in charge.

They were given some slips to give out to the students in their class to ask if there are any requests or items they would like to be discussed at the next meeting, or any questions they might have for the senior leaders in the school. It is very important that we give all students the chance to have their say in the things they would like to happen in our school. I asked if the councillors could collect them and ask their class teachers to pass them on to me by the end of this half term ready for any issues to be discussed at the next meeting when I hope Mr Kernan will be able to attend.

One issue raised by Quinton was that he would like there to be some smaller dessert spoons in the dining hall for the younger children to eat with as he said it is difficult to get all of the yoghurt out of the pots with the bigger spoons. I assured him that I would resolve this as soon as possible.

I told the new councillors to look after their badges and to be proud to wear them around school so that all other students will know who they are and they can ask them for help if they need to.

As there were no other points for discussion from the new council I told them that their class teacher will inform them of the agenda and date for the next meeting, and if they wanted to get in touch with me before then to ask the teacher to email me. I suggested to them that they all have access to their own email accounts and if they ask their teachers I am sure they will be glad to help them use them.
